

INTERPRETING THE NEWS

More federal aid for conservation is assured by Congressional approval of the Dingell bill carrying existing federal excise taxes for game fish restoration and management projects.

The excise tax applies to fishing rods, creels, reels and artificial lures, baits and flies—items perennially in demand by sportsmen. How much money will be raised by this levy? Approximately five million dollars a year! The National Wildlife Federation declares that the Michigan game ranks high in the history of wildlife movement. Its importance is equal to that of the migratory bird treaty and the game law.

Michigan's conservation program is regarded nationally as "top" in the Nation. P. J. Hoffmaster has been director of the state department for the past 15 years.

If you are a sportsman, and Michigan is filled with them, you probably read with approval the above item about new federal aid to Michigan and other states.

The trend of more governmental spending for more public benefits has been accelerated at Washington by the 81st Congress. Federal spending for the present year (ending June 30, 1950) is expected to exceed $45 billion, compared with anticipated receipts of $40 billion. Thus a treasury deficit of $5 billion is now in sight!

As 1950 is an election year, Washington observers do not expect that Congress will increase taxes next year. Deficit spending is likely to rise in 1950.

This inflationary pressure, new created by the Russian A-bomb, a new economic factor that may have direct effects on Michigan government finances.

The 1949 general session of the state legislature resisted efforts to new taxes, but legislators also resisted attempts to curtail spending, much of which benefits local governments. Just as the Dingell bill will benefit Michigan conservation projects and hence will be popular with sportsmen, so the state aid appropriations for local governments—schools, libraries, cities, counties and townships—are equally favored. The net result seems to be one thing: More spending by government; more taxes or more treasury deficits.

Michigan's "D-Day"—the coming treasury deficit—may occur next spring when heavy payments will be made by the State of Michigan to public schools.

It is a matter of record, repeatedly emphasized in this column, that 75 per cent of the state sales tax is now being diverted back to home governments. Most state officials believe that a treasury deficit will be inevitable when price inflation ceases to produce ever higher amount of sales tax receipts. So far, the state treasury has been protected by price inflation—1949 brings price inflation, as present signs appear to indicate, the day of reckoning may be delayed once again.

The writer of this column for state capital interpretations has allowed a policy of avoiding personal bias on controversial matters. We have reviewed factual legislative matters on a federal state level which have been socialistic in their objectives. The federal housing law to subsidize rents for low income workers was a recent case.

When future historians write about our current post-war period, will present judgment on our collective statism, the so-called "welfare state" wherein government protects the citizen in a cradle to the grave. Why are we traveling in this direction? Here anything we can do, as loving Americans, to halt encroachments on our personal liberties?

Some contemporary historians the Communist menace of the war is forcing Democracy bankruptcy itself in a race for survival. Dollar devaluation by Britain and possibly soon the United States are cited as of such dire forecasts.

What can we do in the face of eased government spending in Washington and Lansing? That's a problem for the taxpayer.

Our answer must come at the box in American communities everywhere. The choice is for the people to make—and means you.

Left halfback Max Niederer picked up 65 yards in rushing to lead the Viking offensive with Worden adding 45, Don Millikin 41, Rasmussen 28 and Quarterback Jack Trudeau 25. J. Fleming with 44 was the top ground gainer for Graylord.

The Vikings travel to Harbor Springs this Friday for the last game of the 1949 grid season. The Harbor Springs Rams were defeated by Charlevoix last Friday 28 to 12 and showed a powerful passing game which allowed them to score twice against the strong Rayer eleven. Harbor Springs has shown improvement each week and is expected to win over the Vikings. The local team, of course, will go into the game in a weak condition due to the tragic and sudden death of their star left halfback Max Niederer. Also possibly lost to the team is End Bob Rasmussen who scored two touchdowns against Gaylord. He suffered a cracked collar bone in the game and probably will not see action against the Rams.

Improve School Spirit By Poster Campaign

Last week the eighth grade English class put on a very successful poster campaign. The purpose of the campaign was to arouse more school spirit for the Graylord football game.

The first booster posters were put on display Tuesday morning, October 18. The school rooms and many downtown stores were showing posters by Wednesday afternoon.

The booster posters must have helped a little, because on Friday afternoon the school classes stood on the side lines and cheered the Grayling football team on to a 13 to 18 victory over Gaylord.

The Eighth Grade are to be congratulated on the fine school spirit they showed in putting this project over.

The Eighth Grade class will try to continue this poster campaign for the home basketball games during the winter.

Word has been received here of the passing of Hans P. Schmidt at his home in Los Angeles, California, October 11.

Hans was formerly a Grayling boy and went to California with his mother some 40 years ago. He was a brother of the late Holger Schmidt of this city, and will be remembered by many local people.

V. F. W. Auxiliary News

On Monday evening, October 17, Post Chief Shopenaggon Auxiliary held its regular meeting.

Guest of the evening was District President, Inice Eaton of Harrison, Michigan, who was here for her annual inspection.

All notebooks from all chairmen were in for inspection and were favorably passed on. The floor work was properly done and the necessary equipment was on hand.

Our inspection was very favorable and we were complemented on our rapid advancement for such a new auxiliary.

The plans for the District Rally to be held in Grayling on Nov. 18 were completed. The Home Economics class of Grayling High School is going to serve dinner for the rally in the High School at noon. There will be floor practice for District Officers in the gymnasium in the forenoon.

The afternoon will be taken up with business sessions for the V. F. W. and its Auxiliaries. We are in hopes the rally will be a large success.

After the meeting the refreshment committee served a lovely luncheon.

Guests attending, October 18, yours truly, Marie Bolton, attended the reception for the V. F. W. Auxiliary National President, Evelyn B. Monaco, which was held in Detroit. About one thousand persons attended the reception.

The national president was welcomed by the largest police guard ever assembled in her honor.

Ladies in uniform held an arch of flags from the curb all the way to the speakers table in the back of the large hall. The speaker's table was beautifully decorated with miniatures of all the states in the Union plus Hawaii and Alaska.

Department of Michigan President, Catherine Beck explained the table decorations to National President Evelyn B. Monaco, they were symbolizing the trips she had made and had yet to make in her year in office ending with the National convention in Chicago, August, 1950.

In the middle of the meeting the Wayne County Council Drum and Bugle Corps marched in and honored the national president with two selections.

The Grayling Squadron enjoyed a potluck lunch last Wednesday evening. During the meal (while the hot chocolate brewing) several cadets got instruction on communication procedure.

Cadets Bob Schaffer of R. common and Jerry Barber of Grayling installed two signs front of our quarters at Grayling airport. However, they did with the help of many other cadets, too numerous to mention. The squadron is making an out drive to increase its membership, so if you think you would be interested in becoming a member, you are welcome to attend any meetings. Who knows, you may even get something out of it.

Same Old Bear

"The Russian spirit consists in hatred of the individual and his absorption into the state to the advantage of despotism; for despotism, as a regime, is a prerequisite to the establishment of world dominion. Unless we stand on guard we shall witness the infallible success of a man who will appear and summon the people of Europe to rise in the name of equality; who will offer to the masses protection against their own unruly natures and an equal turn at the common soup ladle."

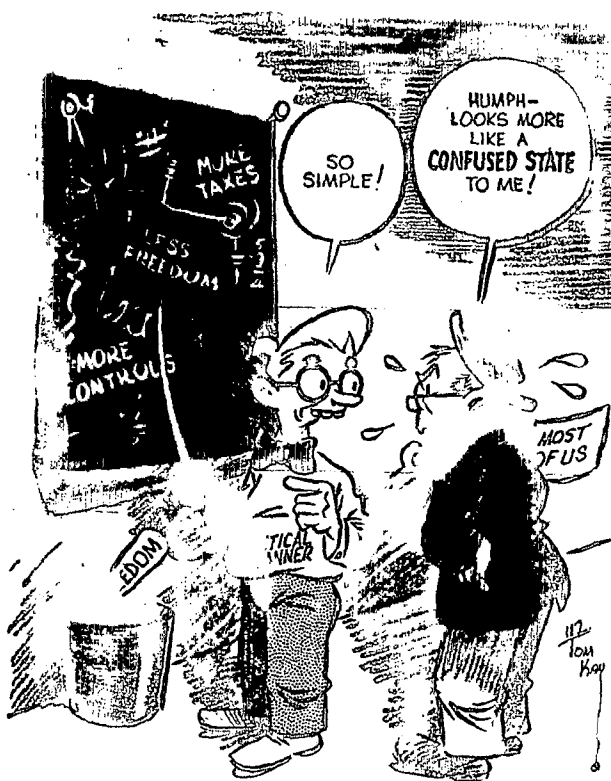

Does that sound as if it had been written yesterday? It could have been, but it wasn't. It was penned about hundred years ago by a Russian observer named Emil Montegut.

Here is still another quotation: "The more I see of Russia the more I approve of the tsar's forbidding Russians to travel abroad and making access to Russia difficult for foreigners. The Russian political system could not stand for 20 years against communication between Russia and the West." That, too, was written a century ago, by a French diplomat named the Marquis de Custine. Change the word "tsar" to "Stalin" and you will have an observation that might have been made by any number of present-day commentators.

These, with other quotations from long-dead observers of the Russian scene, appear in an article in Foreign Affairs by Lewis Galantiere. Mr. Galantiere uses them to support an interesting and credible thesis—that the Russian mind has changed little if at all in a century or more, and that dictatorship, whether it be exerted by an emperor or the Politburo, comes naturally to it. Dorothy Thompson expressed this idea cogently when she wrote: "It is therefore nothing new with which we have to deal today. It is only the old Russia with a new look."

In any event the Russian mind has always been a mystery to the West, made up as it is of a strange mixture of European and Asiatic influences.

Five areas, this year, have been kept under continuous U.N. observation: (1) the Balkans, (2) Palestine, (3) Kashmir, (4) Indonesia, and (5) Korea. In Kashmir, after earlier fighting, a U.N.-invoked "cease-fire" order had gone into effect on 1 January and truce lines have now been agreed upon.

Day of a U. N. Observer

OCTOBER 24 marks the fourth anniversary of the United Nations. The day has been proclaimed in most U.N. member countries as "U.N. Day," a day of commemoration.

Millions of people have heard of, or have themselves experienced, the concrete accomplishments of U.N. in the social and economic fields. Far fewer realize that, in spite of political difficulties, U.N. has actually "either stopped or prevented wars involving 500,000,000 people," as Secretary-General Trygve Lie states in his Fourth Annual Report on the work of U.N.

Since U.N. does not yet have an army of its own, its only agents for stopping wars have been a small number of military observers, mediators and conciliators, "loaned" to it by member countries. Thirteen of these agents of peace have so far been killed in the line of duty, but others, such as those shown below, carry on.

Somewhere in Kashmir, an Indian commander reports an unauthorized advance by opposing troops. Two U.N. observers, one a U. S. officer (left), the other a Canadian colonel, have been assigned to investigate.

Enroute to the "front" in their white-painted U.N. jeep, the two U.N. observers encounter local inhabitants whose stories may help to clarify the situation. They explain their mission and ask for directions to the mountainous area in dispute.

At the edge of a turbulent river, the jeep is abandoned and the observers cross by this improvised "cable car."

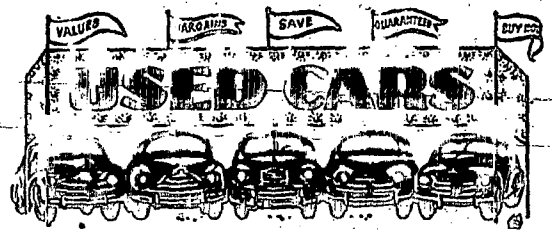

Continuing on foot, the observers near the dangerous military zone and identify themselves with a U.N. flag before crossing a hill. Observers are drawn from many nations, but serve U.N. exclusively while on U.N. duty.

SHORT STORY Acting On Impulse

By Richard Hill Wilkinson

"IT'S ABOUT TIME," said Uncle Ralph, "that you, my dear Constance, were married. You're nearly 25, which is the verge of the ineligible age. Don't let popularity turn your head, my dear, it won't last forever."

One of these days you'll find yourself seeking a man, instead of being sought after. And that," Uncle Ralph added, "often means disaster."

Connie Brigham wrinkled her cute little turned-up nose, closed one eye and stared soberly at Uncle Ralph with the other. Uncle Ralph cleared his throat and began to let his gaze wander about the room. He felt guilty.

"Which," said Connie, with the slightest of twinkles, "is a polite way of suggesting that I accept Bob Merrill, and forget all about Don Baxter. She stood up and ruffled Uncle Ralph's hair, an act which he resented delightfully. And Connie went on: "Uncle Ralph, just why is it that you dislike Don so much? I think he's fascinating."

Uncle Ralph snorted. "Don-ald Baxter," he said, "is not a fit young man to become the husband of any girl. He's flighty, unreliable, impulsive, and out of a job. You never can tell what he's going to do next."

"He's romantic," said Connie. "He's after your money," said Uncle Ralph.

"And he's so good looking," said Connie.

Uncle Ralph coughed. "On the other hand, Bob Merrill is dependable, honorable, manly, steady. You can count upon him to make you a good husband."

"That's just the trouble," said Connie.

"What's just the trouble?" said Uncle Ralph.

"He's steady and dependable. So easy to read. Life with Bob would be safe, yes, but it would also be monotonous."

Despite his outward jovialness while conversing with Connie, Uncle Ralph was worried.

I wish, thought Uncle Ralph, I only wish something would happen to open her eyes. Drat that Don Baxter, you never could tell what he'd do next.

Two days later Uncle Ralph had come no nearer to solving the problem. WITH THIS in mind Uncle Ralph rose from the veranda chair in which he was sitting, only to see Connie coming slowly up the walk. He sat down again, and picked up his newspaper. Connie

"I can never marry Bob, Uncle Ralph."

He had considered every possible plan to make Connie see the light, and discarded them all. In the end he reluctantly decided to interview Connie again, offer one final paternal plea.

came on, doleful and sorrowful of expression. She sighted Uncle Ralph, stopped and smiled whimsically.

"I guess you were right," she said.

"About what?" asked Uncle

Ralph.

"Don."

"Don? How was I right about Don?"

"About never knowing what he's going to do next."

"What's he done, now?"

"He's married. Decided to last night about 8 o'clock. At 6:30 he was a married man."

"Oh, hum," said Uncle

Ralph. He was not one to gloat, hence suppressed his delight with a masterful effort. He merely said mildly, "Well, that's that. Sort of turned out like I said it would. Well, you'll be happier with Bob. He's a man in a million."

Connie shook her head. "I can never marry Bob, Uncle Ralph. That's what makes me feel so bad."

"Tsk, tsk. That's no way to talk. You'll get over Don soon enough. Bet a thousand the girl he married isn't worth one-tenth of you."

"Yes," said Connie, "she's worth all of me. I'm the girl Don married."

(Continuing Nika's Story)

It seems that the "scouting round" young Dan Story had to do that morning, was to secure a flat-boat (saw) to take his family upriver to his cabin. Nika, feeling much better after a good warm breakfast, and much impressed by the apparent happiness and good cheer of the Story family and the warmth of their invitation to go along, forgot most of her troubles and entered into the fun of loading the boat with the Story belongings and getting off to an early start.

The day was fine, as Nika remembered it, and it was hard to be shy with such fine happy people as the new-found strangers.
Besides she wanted to get as far away as she could from her husbands gang, and felt a great protection in the very strong whiteman, and the very happy and smiling white woman. She was even getting used to the white papoose, who was strong and happy, too, but "Very much noise."

It was dark when they reached the cabin in the woods, which was "very fine" too, with a door in front and one behind, windows with glass and a floor made from new boards. Nika was at home in the big woods. She knew the meaning of every sound and that it was the wrong time of year for animals to be dangerous if you let them alone. The howl of a wolf just meant that he was lonely, a "hunting wolf never howled." And coyotes nearby were just chasing rabbits.

During the days that followed,
Nika worked with the Storys, making open places bigger and planting seeds. She made carrying baskets out of willows and she and the white woman took long walks through the woods carrying their babies Indian style, and at night she cooked Indian dishes over an open fire which the whiteman said was "very good."
He was happy about everything.
He laughed very much when Nika named the white baby Peenyeek, because he was "Just like lele white potato," and he named Nika's baby Big Chief Silent-Puss, because he never cried out loud, just a little whine in his throat.

This lasted two weeks, "Mebby three," and then one night as Nika lay on her blanket behind the stove, (she liked the blanket more better than a bed) she heard a sound outside that froze her blood.
Nika knew about sounds. There were three men outside, "Mebby four," and they were sneaking up to the cabin. She heard whispering, and it was her husband's voice. He hadn't killed him with the long knife, and he was "Very evil!" He had come to kill. In an instant Nika was on her feet, tiptoeing over to the whiteman's bed.

(Next week continuing Nika's story.)

New State Tax Laws

Editor's Note: This is the eighth in a series of articles on laws which were passed at the 1949 session of the Michigan Legislature. They affect you and every resident of Michigan.
The entire series is prepared as a public service of the State Bar of Michigan under the direction of Russell A. Searl, Lansing, Chairman of the State Bar Committee on Legislation and Law Reform. The articles are objective in nature and do not attempt to comment on the relative worth of the legislative enactments but rather to present the most important facts and alert you to the changes these laws represent as they became effective on September 23, 1949.

Cities and Villages

The vast majority of bills introduced in the 1949 Legislature having to do with cities and villages were the result of the thinking of the members as to the proper solution of the financial problems not only of the local governments, but, also, the state government.

General Property Taxes
The system under which the general tax on real and personal property is levied was revised and modernized. The proceeds of this tax, ever since 1933 when the 15-mil limitation went into effect, have been divided between local municipalities. The state has refrained from levying any general property tax, relying on the proceeds of other taxes, such as sales tax, corporation tax, and liquor tax.

Under the new law, each step in the assessment of property and the levy of taxes is moved ahead to an earlier date in the year, the "tax day," being the date as of which property is to be assessed, being changed from April first to January first.

Non-Exemption of Federal Property

Other amendments to the general property tax act included a limitation upon the exemption of federal property. With the increase of amount of property in the state owned by the United States government, Congress has passed legislation permitting certain types of federally owned property to be taxed for local purposes. Accordingly, our state act was amended to provide that such property, although owned by the federal government, would not be exempt in case of such permissive federal legislation.

Personal Property

Mr. Average Citizen was given a break when the Legislature increased the amount of his exemption from taxes on personal property consisting of furniture, fuel and tools in his professional trade.
On the other hand, school districts which own property which for more than two years is held for income purposes rather than public school purposes are required to pay taxes or special assessment thereon to the city, village, or township in which the property is situated.

By another act, municipalities were authorized to carry out programs for the modernization of residential neighborhoods. Cities and villages were also authorized to accept grants from the federal government as well as contributions or aid from industries to assist in projects to prevent water pollution.

Liquor Laws

Three bills of interest to local governments pertaining to the operation of the liquor laws were also enacted.

The first governs the holding of local elections upon the issue of "on premises" sale of spirits in cities and villages. From now on a vote upon that issue may only be held at elections at which candidates for state offices are to be elected. Previously, it has been possible to call a special election to vote upon such an issue and the experience has shown that at such elections only a fraction of the eligible voters determine the issue.

The second bill clarified the manner of determining the distance between liquor bars and churches or schools to determine whether the bars are outside the 500 feet area as prescribed by the 1945 act.
This applied only to new licensees.

The third bill prohibited the operation of "bottle clubs" which sell set-ups to members and in which the members were served their own liquor. Before the effective date of this measure these clubs could operate without any regulation.

Election Laws

The election laws were also amended in some minor details.
The first of these clarified the requirements in regard to absentee voters. The main purpose of this was to provide that a citizen who had actually changed his place of residence would not be permitted to vote at his former place of residence unless his intention to retain his former residence was demonstrated by something other than the ownership or rental of property.

of furniture. Of course, this does not have any effect upon employees of state and federal government or members of the armed services who retain their former residence by virtue of constitutional provisions.

By other legislation, the election officials are authorized to break the seal on voting machines following the seven days after the final adjournment of the board of canvassers unless prohibited by court order, and, in any event, the clerk is permitted to break the seals in less than twenty days preceding the next election so that the voting machine may be readied for use thereafter. This legislation was apparently occasioned by the tying up of several machines under court order preliminary to the recount in the Ferguson-Hooker senatorial election and the Blackney-Stevens contest following the 1948 election. A number of cities were deprived of the use of their election machines and ballot boxes at the 1949 spring election inasmuch as they had been required by court order to preserve the machines and boxes without change and the recount had not been made by the federal officials by that time.

Failures

Among the acts which failed of passage was an act requiring fire departments to grant a second holiday, a "Kelly Day," in every 8-day period to firemen. This would have reduced their work week to 68 hours.

Another bill was defeated also which would have prohibited local municipalities from adopting regulations denying members of the police from membership in the Fraternal Order of Police, a secret national organization.

tion.)

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Now They're Sitting Pretty

Squint Miller, who's working as a telephone lineman, was telling me about some birds that got into a fight with his company.

Seems a couple of woodpeckers set up housekeeping in a telephone pole. Nobody minded them living there, but they kept pecking at the wires—causing one short circuit after another.

Finally, the telephone people—who had nothing personal against the birds—just stopped up the hole where they lived. But they kept coming back. At last, the company donated that pole to the woodpeckers and set up a brand-new one for their own use!

From where I sit, we'd all be better off if we were as tolerant with our own kind as that telephone outfit was with the woodpeckers.
Let's consider the other fellow's point of view—whether it's his right to live where he wants, or to enjoy a friendly glass of temperate beer or ale when and if he pleases.

The City of Grayling has installed a new water main across the railroad tracks on M-72 with the result that there will be better fire protection there. They have also constructed 240 feet of new sidewalks at the corner of Maple and Vine Streets.

There was a fine turn out at the Harvest Supper at Michelson Memorial Church last Thursday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Freeman of Gagetown are visiting at the Willard Cornal home. They spent the past week in Alpena visiting her brother, Roy Klien and family.

BIRTHDAY PARTY
Jackie Sue Hunter was thirteen years old last Thursday and her mother, Mrs. Bud Hunter invited in 16 young ladies to help her celebrate the occasion.

The affair was a hobo party. The group roasted weiners and ate out of tin cans. Individual cakes bore Jackie's name and the initials of each girl. Mr. Hunter contributed his bit by telling ghost stories around the fire and the young ladies report that he is a very fine story teller and they enjoyed it very much.

CALVARY BAPTIST CHURCH
Tuesday, October 18, the Ambassadors reorganized their group and elected new officers as follows: Pres., Jerry McEvers; vice pres., Fred Niederer, Jr.; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Ted McEvers; reporter, Joy Beal. The group will now be run entirely by the young people.

Sunday, October 23, the Youth Fellowship met for their regular service at 6:30 P. M. The speaker for October 30 is Jerry McEvers. All young people are cordially invited to fellowship with us in these services.

Michelson Memorial Church School Notes
Carole Anne Gross, Irene Hornung, and Dennis Leng are new members of the Kindergarten Department. In the Primary Department, Phyllis Sherman and Bruce Leng entered the Second Grade and Roger Corbin, the Third. The Fifth and Eighth Grades welcomed Newton Allison, Bob Strong and Holly Piper back after long absences.

In the Junior and Intermediate Department, perfect attendance honors were divided among the Fourth, Sixth, Ninth and Senior classes, and the steadily increasing attendance sent the ushers scurrying around after extra chairs.

Judy Muncie received congratulations on a recent birthday anniversary.

Final plans for the Youth Fellowship party still were shrouded in mystery, with the exception of a promised archery contest, with prizes, yet! Other than that, vague promises of food, fun and phantoms galore were circulating. The date is Saturday, the time, 2:30 P. M., the take-off point, the church. Adequate transportation is promised, and while broomsticks weren't mentioned, neither was any other specific form of transportation. Apparently, the young people are just going to have to take their own chances.

SHOWERS FETE BRIDES-TO-BE
Mrs. Royale Wright, Mrs. Clarence Clippert and Miss Margrethe Bauman were co-hostesses at a miscellaneous shower for Miss Jane Milnes at Mrs. Wright's home on Tuesday. The affair was a one o'clock luncheon and forty-nine ladies were present.

The table at which the bride-to-be was seated, was decorated in white, bearing a white wedding cake topped with a bride and groom. Little flower containers held white baby mums and spring rye and there were white tapers.

The other tables were also graced with arrangements of white mums and rye and white tapers.

Following the tasty luncheon Miss Milnes opened her many lovely gifts. She was assisted with the wrappings by Mrs. Clyde Borchers, Mrs. Robert Welsh and Miss Jane Ann Martin.

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Feldhauser were host and hostess to about thirty-five guests at a bridal shower on October 18 at Hi-Banks Lodge honoring their son and his bride-to-be Miss Helen Isenhauer, who said their I do's Sunday.

The living room was festive in the party colors of blue and white. The gift table covered with a hand made lace cloth was placed in front of a picture window. A blue parasol with blue and white streamers made a very pretty setting for the gifts in all their gala wrappings.

Refreshments were served buffet style and here, too, the colors of blue and white were carried out. Gracing the long table were brass candelabra holding many lighted white tapers.

Guests were seated at small tables. These had as centerpieces blue candles tied with white ribbon holding nosegays of fall flowers.

Many lovely and useful gifts were received by the honored couple. Among these was the "honeymoon cottage" which was a creation of cake and the ingenious use of icing and nut meats, made and presented by Mrs. John Ludeman.

The honoree and the Misses Lois Bradley and Louise Feldhauser, who assisted the hostess were presented with corsages of fall flowers.

GIRL SCOUT TROOP 6
On September 20, the first Girl Scout meeting was held. Mrs. R. Moshier called the meeting to order. We elected our officers, Patty Thompson as treasurer, Nancy Hilton as secretary, and Nancy Sorenson as scribe. Six new Brownies are now in our troop, Martha Stillwagon, Kay Ann LaMotte, Judy Sorenson, Deanne Herrick, Linda Failing and Kay Ann Parkinson.

Georgiana Lutz was presented with her cooking badge. We talked about having a Halloween Party. It will be held at the Danebod Hall on the 25th. We said the Girl Scout Promise, then adjourned.

Parents of Grayling Boys

Good leadership for Scouting program is a responsibility of every community. The Scouting organization will help you have a troop in Grayling.

The citizens of Grayling must provide meeting place, leaders and a working committee.

The Summer Trails Council will help you with recruitment and training of leaders; courts of honor for recognition of achievement; and provide a summer camp which your boys may attend.

Your boys want Scouting. Your boys need Scouting. The great outdoors is not all of life. Boys need citizenship training, and the experience of group living which Scouting offers.

There is potential leadership in this town. We will show you how to find and train it. But we must have the interested co-operation of a group of citizens, especially parents.

The Youth of your community is the greatest asset Grayling has. It should be developed in the best way possible. What are you going to do about it?

If we have replies from twenty interested people, we will be here to help with the organization of a troop. Write a penny post card to Eddy, field secretary, The National Kids' Day Foundation; Carroll West, assistant secretary, Kiwanis International; and O. E. Peterson, executive secretary, Kiwanis International.

All money raised in a community will remain there to be spent in helping underprivileged children. The effects of local Kiwanis clubs will be supported by a nation-wide promotional campaign provided by The National Kids' Day Foundation which will include a radio program on Friday evening, Nov. 18, and premieres of a new motion picture, "Johnny Holiday," in Indianapolis, Ind. and Hollywood, Calif., on Thursday, Nov. 17. R. W. Alcorn, producer of the picture, is donating the proceeds of these premieres and others to follow in all Kiwanis divisions for Club work with underprivileged children.

Christmas Tree Harvest Season Started

While it is still early to think about buying a Christmas tree, the harvest of Michigan's annual Christmas tree crop of upwards of a million trees has already started, according to C. A. Boyer, Chief of the Bureau of Plant Industry, Michigan Department of Agriculture.

As a protection to land owners the 1933 Michigan Legislature passed Act No. 124, known as "The Christmas Tree Act," which governs the removal and transportation of both Christmas trees and Christmas boughs. Briefly, Mr. Boyer states this Act prohibits the cutting and/or removal or transportation of such stock without the written consent of the owner, which interpreted means a legal bill of sale must accompany the Christmas tree or boughs.

Such a legal bill of sale shows the number of trees or amount of boughs, the exact legal description of the land where grown, and must be signed by the legal land owner and two witnesses. Legal bill-of-sale forms may be obtained from the County Agricultural Agents, Conservation officers, state police, county sheriffs, or from the Michigan Department of Agriculture.

These bill-of-sale forms are free for the asking. If you wish to transport a Christmas tree or a load of trees, you must have the properly completed form in your possession to present to the inspectors or other authorized persons who may request to see it. Road blocks are set up, where State Police, Conservation Officers, members of sheriff's departments, will be assisting Michigan Department of Agriculture inspectors in checking, 24 hours a day, the transportation of Christmas trees and boughs. Be prepared to co-operate with these officers and avoid delay by having the bill of sale ready. Failure to have such bill of sale may mean that the trees will be confiscated at one of the established road blocks.

For detailed information on Michigan's Christmas Tree Act, inquiry should be made to the Bureau of Plant Industry, Michigan Department of Agriculture, Lansing.
